Stmr. Kinau, Freeman, from Hilo and OPENING OF PALOLO LOTS TOMORROW

Land Commissioner J. W. Pratt has for distribution to those interested an eight-page brochure telling all about the right of purchase leases. Tomorrow he will receive applications for the upper Palolo valley lots under this system. The leases have a life of 21 years, but at any time after the third year the Government is authorized to deliver to the lessee "a land patent conveying to him in fee simple the land described in his lease, provided that he has paid to the Government the appraised value of the premises, and also provided that he has reduced to cultivation twenty-five per cent of the premises, and also provided that he has resided on the premises not less than two years, and has substantially performed all the other conditions of his lease."

There will probably be a rush for the Palolo lots, the land being fertile and the location within easy reach of Honolulu.

The occasion was a day's rook shooting in the elm trees at Moyle's Court in England, at which one of the sportsmen, Richard Troomer, backed himself to kill more birds with his flintlock rifle and a single ball, than his host, Mr. Mist, did with his fowling piece and shot. The number of shots to be limited to twenty each. Any one who has ever seen the tree tops of a rookery, when the birds have been driven crazy by gunners, will know what sort of a task the challenger set himself; yet he killed a bird at every shot; while his competitor with the shotgun only killed nineteen out of twenty. On another occasion, Richard Troomer and his brother Edward, shooting alternately at pigeons from the trap with flintlock rifles and a single ball, killed eight pigeons out of twelve, besides one which fell outside the limits; and Richard finished up by firing at a cricket ball, with his gun loaded with shot, the ball being bowled by Harris, then one of the swiftest bowlers in England, and succession-a pretty good showing.
